Burpee named director of National Hurricane Center

Hurricane Hugo, packing winds of 110 mph, was just off the coast of Barbados in the Caribbean. Dr. Robert Burpee was on board a research airplane investigating the storm.

"We were flying at 15,000, feet when one of the plane's four engines suddenly failed." Burpee recalled. "The next thing I knew we fell 800 feet right into the hurricane." Burpee, a veteran of over 200 trips into tropical systems, calls it the most frightening flight of his career.

As rough as that research mission might have been,

Burpee readily admits dealing with the throng of television cameras and reporters as part of his new position may be more daunting than any of his flights into hurricanes.

This week Burpee officially begins his new job as director of the National Hurricane Center. He replaces Dr. Robert Sheets; the man with the familiar face and reassuring voice, who held that post for the past eight years.
"I'll certainly try to fill the shoes of my predecessor," Burpee said. The people who know Burpee best, the employ-ees of the hurricane center, say he's up to the challenge.

"This guy knows his stuff," said Deput Director Jerry

No cure for Parkinson's exists, so treatment aims to relieve symptoms and keep the patient functional as long as possible, including occasional dietary changes, and physical and occupational therapy. The MOST important aspect of dealing with this, or any other disease entity, is the willingness of the patient to comply with the treatment program. Medications used to counterfact the debilifating effects are 12 dopa, Amantadine, and Eldepryl. Diet therapy includes restricting caffeine (colas, chocolate, tea and coffee) and tyramine which is found in certain cheeses and meats to prevent a form of hypertension. There is still hope that a cure will be found. One of the most current, innovative therapies that researchers at the UCLA School of Medicine have discovered is a method to transplant fetal rat brain cells containing the substance called Dopamine, which is necessary for the human brain to function properly. As, is the case with many chronic, debilitating diseases, current research may someday provide the key to prevention

The FDA: Continuing to cross the line

By Malcolm Wallop
Big-government advocates, including President Clinton and many government officials, are stunned and confused by the public's loud stunned and confused by the public's loud response to government abuses. The steel girders holding up their "government is pristine and good" philosophy are collapsing.

In this information era, news about how government agencies ride roughshod over individual personal freedoms spreads quickly. Because these concerns are such a threat to their credo, liberals haye chosen to address them by attacking the citizens who have been harmed by their wn government.

Today on television, on radio, and in the print media, it is not uncommon to find liberals describing American citizens who have been abused by federal agencies as militia members, right-wing extremists, anarchists, and in some extraordinary circumstances, "Oklahoma City bomber-types."

The only way to continue their agenda of big government and more regulation is to scare those Americans who have yet to feel the sting-ing slap of a government agency. The liberal establishment cannot discuss these unfortunate events without resorting to distortions, lies, and in many cases, outri slander. But the facts are clear. Agencies of federal government have routinely overstepped their bounds by blindly enforcing federal regula-tions at the expense of the personal freedoms of citizens.

Twenty years ago, American citizens cast a wary eye on the Internal Revenue Service. The stories of IRS harassment were clearly documented and well known by the taxpayers, but because advanced communications tethnology was in its infancy, most people had never heard of the Environmental Protection Agency; the Bureau of Aelonol, Tobacco and Firearms, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration; the Fish and Wildlife Service; and the Forestry Service. Today these and other federal agencies wield enormous power over our individual lives and find our constitutional freedoms agencies when denimous power over our mix-vidual lives and find our constitutional freedoms to be an impediment to their efficiency. One federal agency not often talked about in the context of government abuse is the Food and Drug Administration, currently headed by super-regulator David Kessler.

Drug Administration, currently headed by super-regulator David Kessler.

This benign-sounding agency has grown out of control in recent years. The FDA now has more than 9,000 full-time employees involved in regulating American business, and its budget has grown over 237 percent (in constant dollars). Commission Kessler's empire is huge.

Worse than its size, under Commissioner Kessler, the FDA has become extremely rigid and excessively bureaucratic. And lately, it has become increusably aggressive in pursuing its regulatory agenda.

The FDA was established to test and determine if a food or drug was harmful to humans. It was not established to be lord and master over Americans or the food and drug industries. In short, if the FDA determines that crushed peach pits do not help in the curing of cancer, that's fine. That's their job - to study and report. However, if I have cancer, it is not my government's role to tell me that I cannot take crushed peach pits if I feel it can help my ill-ness. Tell that to the FDA!

If my illness is serious and life threatening, who is the FDA to hold back medicine that'I ernment have routinely overstepped their bounds by blindly enforcing federal regulations at the expense of the per-sonal freedoms of citizens." - Malcolm Wallop

The FDA has no right to create unnecessary The FDA has no right to create unnecessary delays in the examination stage of an experimental drug. In many cases, companies have invested huge sums of money on experimental drugs only to be delayed by a bureaucracy that cannot justify its action other than to claim the power to regulate tests. The end result often entails a company's closure or move from the United States.

Consider some of these facts and horror

ories:

• More than 150,000 American heart-attack satients may have died because the FDA needessly refused to approve a life-saving drug that lessly refused to approve a life-saving drug that had already been approved in Europe. Commissioner Kessler sanctioned the refusal.

• In 1991, the FDA raided and physically destroyed 24,000 half-gallons of Citrus Hill "Fresh Choice" orange juice because Commissioner Kessler did not approve of the way the orange juice was labeled! There was no danger to consumers, but the word "fresh" on the label was justification enough for the FDA's high-handed and vindictive action.

• In 1992, FDA agents donned flak jackets and, with guns drawn, stormed a clinic in Wash-and, with guns drawn, stormed a clinic in Wash-

• In 1992, FDA agents donned flak jackets and, with guns drawn, stormed a clinic in Washington state, seized records, and destroyed inventory. But they have yet to press formal charges against the doctor who owned the clinic. The clinic's sole crime was advocating good nutrition and vitamins as an alternative to more traditional medical treatments.
• American consumers can't use life-saving drugs that are commonly used elsewhere. On nearly six years earlier than the same drugs in the United States.

• More than 50 percent of American medical-device companies are moving jobs and manufacturing operations overseas because the FDA bureaucracy makes it impossible for them to make money here.

To give you an idea of how ludicrous an enterprise the FDA has become, USA Today recently reported that a surgeon from Virginia will travel to England this year; for an operation for a shoulder implant device which he invented! It will not be available in the United States for at least three years because of rigid FDA regulatory authority.

The legacy of Commissioner David Kessler's FDA has been endless delays, reams of regulation and red tape, lost business and lets jobs, and life-saying drugs not being available because they take too long to approve.

The FDA, however, is not just 9,000 chemists and scientists. The FDA's new-found mission is to get into the Elliott Ness game of raiding stores and destroying products, it is an ominous turn that should give all Americans cause for See FDA, Page 5 deep concern. The FDA has no national police authority in its charder, yet it now has its own corps of armed raiders.

The FDA has become a rogue agency that is out of control. It needs to be harnessed. Since President Clinton réfuses to take any disciplinary action against Commissioner Kessler or the agency itself, it falls to Congress to exercise some supervision over this regulatory colossus.

Some hefty cuts in the FDA's operating budget, new legislation that specifically outlines and limits the agency's mission, and privatizing some of the FDA's existing responsibilities would all be steps in the right direction.

I challenge my former colleagues to make dramatic moves by making the FDA accountable to the people and curbing its enormous authority.

Is it to be a police agency enforcing a bureau-cratic tangle, or is it an agency whose basic mis-sion is to provide timely and accurate science to Americans? The FDA's authority, when all is said and done, determines who lives and who said and done, determines wine lives and wides in our society. Focusing attention on its mission and its budget is the only way to get its attention. And it is the only way to ensure that Américan consumers and companies are protected from the excessive regulatory power that is allowly but surely eating away at basic freedoms.

As top level carnivores, Great Egrets are at high risk in terms of mercury intake. Wading birds are at the top of the Everglades food chain, and they accumulate mercury by eating fish that have the metal concentrated in their tissues. Wading birds eat a diet that consists almost entirely of fish, Ms. Spalding said, and this increases the concentrations and risks for mercury toxicosis in the birds.

Heat visits Belle Glade

Miami Heat Vice President of Community Relations Director Wali Jones and Assistant Wesley Frater visited Belle Glade on Thursday, July 6th, at Lake Shore Middle School. Sixty-five youths between the ages of 5-13 got a rare treat from Mr. Jones, the former All American from Villanova University, and the N.B.A. Philadelphin Gers. Jones played with the former Heat owner Billy Cunningham. The youth were taken through various human relations subject matters. (1) Self Esteem (2) Time Management (3) Refusal Skills (4) Academic Action Plan. The students then took part in a Basketball Instructional Camp under the direction of Camp under the direction of Wesley Frater, who is also

Director of Tournament of Champions, Inc. in Miami, said Mr. Jones 'It is always a great honer and fun to visit the city of Belle Glade. The people here are beautiful and I get a chance to train 65 of our most National Resource 'Our Youth'. The 65 youths were a part of the Palm Beach County Parks and Recre-ation Summer Day Camp. Staff Beach County Parks and Recreation Summer Day Camp. Staff worker Mr. Louis Butts replied, "It is a great inspiration to have these two gentlemen from the Heat here in Belle Glade."

Organizations wishing to have the Wali Jones Summer Basketball Camp visit Belle Glade should call the Heat office at 577-HEAT (4328) or the Shoot for the Stars Institute at 305-696-9842

Donnie Scruggs takes first place in freestyle and Greco-Roman Wrestling

Donnie Scruges, who just completed eighth grade at Glades Day School, won first place in both freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling in the 120 lb. weight division for 13-14 year olds in the Sunshine State Games held Saturday, July 8, in Gainesville. Scruggs had three pins and two technical falls in the compertition, holding all opponents to a total of four points.

The Sunshine State Games in Florida's Olympic-style sports, festival created for amateur athletes of all ages. Started in 1980 through legislative enactment, the games debut year attracted 3,200 athletes participating in 24 sports. It has since grown to over 40 sports and 11,000 participants.

Donnie has wresatled for six years under the direction of Marty Espinoza. This year's win at SSG is his fourth consecutive year winning both styles.

"catch-and-release" method is a way to recycle you bass so oth er people can enjoy the thrill of hooking the same fish later on. The key is to keep the trau-ma of being caught to a mini-num," said Lt. Jim Huffstot, Everglade Regional Public Information Coordinator with the Florida Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC). "Catch-and-release is the wave of the future for conservation minded

Huffstodt said anglers

should follow ten basic tips to insure their catch survives to fight another day:

--Use hooks with small barbs, no barbs or hooks with barbs mashed down.

-Strike quickly when a bass takes your bait so he doesn't swallow the hook deep where it swallow the hook deep where it can cause major damage.

-Play the fish rapidly. An exhausted fish might not have the energy to swim away if you have played him too long.

-Don't use abrasive landing nets which will strip away the slime laver that protects the fish against infection.

-Handle the bass by the lower jaw, pinching it with your thumb and forefinger.

go. (I mean, let him go.) –

Before long, Bear and Bunny were bounding and bouncing and jumping from stuffed chairs to couches to mattresses as if they had been together for years. They forgot their fears and loneliness.

Next Barry and Jack turned on all the TV sets and pretended they were on a huge space ship. They found two bikes and rode around the store exploring their new planet.

"Full speed ahead!" Barry yelled. "You'll never catch me!" Just then he missed a turn and crashed into a big pile of yarn. Jack was right behind and smashed into some quilt batting. They both had found a soft landing in the craft department.

Actors and performers use this as a warmup. Two players pair up and look into each - other's eyes. One person starts with an action such as a wave of the hand, a bend or a movement of the head.

- The other person "mirrors" the first person by doing exactly as he/she is doing, just like what you would see happening in a mirror. Move slowly and precisely. How well can
- two of you look like reflections?

July Fun Facts •••••

The word telephone comes from the Greek root words tele, meaning "far," and phone, meaning "sound." The first use of the word telephone was early in the 17th century. It was used to describe the string telephone that children used as a toy. In March 1876, Alexander Graham Bell was granted a patent for the development of a device to transmit speech sound over electric wires-what we know today as the telephone.

Raisin Crunch Bars

Ruth Burdette, Frederick, MD

Ingredients:

- 3/4 cup Grape Nuts® cereal
- 1/4 cup raisins
- 2 tsp. shredded coconut
- 1/3 cup frozen apple juice concentrate with no
- added sugar, thawed
- 1 tsp. honey 1 envelope unflavored gelatin

Carefully chop the raisins in small pieces. Pour the cereal, the raisins and coconut into a small bowl. Set aside. In a small saucepan, mix juice, honey and gelatin. Cook over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Pour the juice mixture over the cereal mixture and stir thoroughly. Spray a mini-loaf pan with non-stick shortening spray, and pack the fruit and cereal firmly into the pan. Refrigerate till firm. Use spatula to loosen edges of the mix. Cut into four bars, wrap in plastic wrap and store in the refrigerator until ready to eat.

"R" Animal Riddles

An animal whose name begins with "R" is described in each poem. Can you name it?

- 1. Masked, with striped tail a-swishing, It washes its catch when it's finished fishing.
- 2. It sprints along the desert plains, Beeping out horn-like refrains.
- 3. Broad of wing and black of feather, Its group is loud when they caw together.
- Over the ocean floor it glides This thin, flat fish in sand will hide.
- 5. With Lapland folks and elves, as well, Does this antlered creature dwell.
- 6. With snake-like tail and long, whiskered face, This menacing rodent is found everyplace.

ANSWERS: 1. Raccoon; 2. Roadrunner; 3. Raven; 4. Ray; 5. Reindeer; 6. Rat
